Development read across the VIFM competency framework (the same framework as the 360)

Your profile at a glance

Your responses suggest you work with strong interpersonal capability, particularly excelling in Clear & Adaptive Communication, Stakeholder Management, and Trust & Credibility. You see yourself as proficient overall, with notable strengths in Leading & Developing Others, Customer & Stakeholder Focus, and Influence & Communication, indicating you build effective relationships and guide people well in your HR and talent acquisition role. To enhance your impact further, focusing on Sound Judgement, Digital & Data Fluency, and Emotional Regulation & Empathy will help you make sharper decisions, leverage technology more confidently, and deepen your understanding of diverse candidate and stakeholder needs. Building these areas alongside your relational strengths will position you for even greater effectiveness in strategic talent work.

Discussion prompts

For your development conversation

- What upcoming opportunity could let you practise Sound Judgement deliberately?
- What support or assignment would help you build Digital & Data Fluency?
- How can you use your strength in Clear & Adaptive Communication to support your development areas?
- How will we both know you have made progress in 90 days?

Questions to ask yourself

- When did you last notice Sound Judgement making a difference in your work?
- What is one small habit you could start this week?
- Are you leaning on Clear & Adaptive Communication so much that other areas get less attention?
- Who could be a role model or mentor for your priorities?

OVERALL SELF-RATING

3.50 / 5 · Proficient

Strategic & Commercial Reasoning

2.0 · Requires Focus

Sound Judgement

2.0 · Requires Focus

Makes timely, balanced decisions under incomplete information, accounting for risk, stakeholders, and second-order consequences.

Uniform rating of 2 across all judgement statements reveals a 2-point gap to the demanding role target of 4, signaling a critical growth area. Build decision-making confidence through case study analysis with your manager on past complex hiring decisions and request involvement in offer negotiation scenarios where incomplete information is the norm.

Suggestion: Set clear decision-making timeframes for yourself. For each pending decision, ask: "What information is essential versus nice-to-have?" Make the decision once you have the essentials — don't wait for perfect information.

Innovation & Complexity

2.0 · Requires Focus

Digital & Data Fluency

2.0 · Requires Focus

Applies digital tools, automation, and data analysis to improve how work gets done and decisions get made.

Rated consistently at 2 across all digital and data statements, this competency sits 1.5 points below role target and represents a priority development area. Build foundational capability by enrolling in a practical digital analytics course focused on HR metrics (time-to-hire, candidate pipeline data) and commit to using one new automation tool in daily recruitment workflows.

Suggestion: Identify one digital tool or platform per quarter that could improve your team's productivity. Learn it yourself first, then champion its adoption. Lead by example in embracing technology.

Delivery & Execution

3.0 · Developing

Planning & Prioritisation

3.0 · Developing

Sequences and resources work so the most important commitments are met in line with organisational goals.

All four planning statements received a 3, showing steady capability but sitting 0.5 below the role requirement. Strengthen prioritisation by adopting a structured method like impact/urgency matrices for requisition management and requesting feedback from a senior TA leader on how you sequence hiring pipelines during peak demand periods.

Suggestion: Before starting any project, create a one-page plan: objective, milestones, dependencies, risks, and resources. Share it with stakeholders for alignment before execution begins.

Influence & Communication

4.0 · Proficient

Clear & Adaptive Communication

5.0 · Exceptional

Conveys complex, strategic content clearly, tailoring message and mode to different audiences.

Uniformly strong self-rating of 5 across all communication statements, already exceeding the role target by a full point. Leverage this strength by volunteering to lead candidate experience workshops or presenting complex diversity hiring data to senior stakeholders, turning excellent communication into visible thought leadership.

✓ A real strength: keep it, and watch it does not crowd out the competencies below.

Relationship Networks

3.0 · Developing

Builds and sustains useful internal and external relationships that create access, insight, and influence.

Consistent 3s across relationship-building statements put you 1 point below the target, suggesting room to broaden and deepen connections. Expand your network deliberately by attending two cross-departmental forums monthly and scheduling quarterly coffee meetings with hiring managers outside your usual stakeholder group.

Suggestion: Invest 15 minutes daily in relationship maintenance: a brief check-in message, a shared article, or a coffee invitation. Relationships compound like interest — small, consistent investments yield large returns.

Leading & Developing Others

4.5 · Exceptional

Coaching & Talent Growth

4.0 · Proficient

Develops others toward their potential and the organisation's needs through feedback, stretch, and support.

Consistent 4s across all coaching behaviours place you above the 3.5 target, indicating a natural strength in talent development. Deepen impact by seeking formal coaching certification or mentoring a junior recruiter through their first executive search, adding structure and stretch to your existing capability.

Trust & Credibility

5.0 · Exceptional

Earns confidence through honesty, consistency, and follow-through, becoming someone others rely on.

Strong and consistent 5s across all trust dimensions place you a full point above role requirements, reflecting a solid professional foundation. Capitalise on this by taking ownership of high-stakes stakeholder relationships or sensitive hiring assignments where credibility and follow-through are mission-critical.

✓ A real strength: keep it, and watch it does not crowd out the competencies below.

Integrity & Character

3.3 · Developing

Emotional Regulation & Empathy

2.0 · Requires Focus

Recognises and manages own emotions and reads others', responding in ways that fit the situation.

Across all emotional regulation and empathy statements, you rated yourself at 2, creating a significant 1.5-point gap to role expectations. Develop this critical TA skill through a targeted emotional intelligence workshop and practice active listening techniques in candidate debriefs, perhaps partnering with a peer for mutual observation and feedback.

Suggestion: In every important conversation, listen for the emotion behind the words. Ask yourself: "What is this person feeling?" Acknowledging emotions — "I can see this is frustrating" — builds connection faster than logic.

Ethical Conduct

4.0 · Proficient

Acts honestly and fairly, within the spirit as well as the letter of professional and regulatory standards.

Perfect alignment at 4 across all ethical conduct statements, meeting the role target exactly. Maintain this standard by taking on responsibility for compliance reviews in recruitment processes or mentoring others on navigating ethical dilemmas in candidate assessment and data handling.

Cultural & Inclusive Sensitivity

4.0 · Proficient

Understands and respects diverse norms and perspectives, and works inclusively across them.

Rated at 4 across all cultural sensitivity statements, you already exceed the 3.5 target by half a point. Amplify this strength by leading inclusive hiring training sessions or championing bias-reduction initiatives in interview panel composition and candidate assessment frameworks.

Customer & Stakeholder Focus

4.0 · Proficient

Customer Orientation

3.0 · Developing

Understanding and anticipating customer needs and delivering exceptional, reliable service.

Steady 3s across customer orientation behaviours show solid baseline capability, just 0.5 shy of target. Close the gap by instituting regular candidate journey mapping sessions and creating a personal dashboard to track and act on Net Promoter Score feedback from recent hires and interview participants.

Suggestion: Schedule regular touchpoints with customers to surface needs early.

Stakeholder Management

5.0 · Exceptional

Identifying, aligning and managing internal and external stakeholders with tact and trust.

All stakeholder management statements rated at 5, exceeding the role requirement by a point and highlighting a core strength. Channel this capability strategically by leading a cross-functional hiring initiative or building stakeholder alignment frameworks that less experienced team members can adopt.

✓ A real strength: keep it, and watch it does not crowd out the competencies below.

This is an indicative self-report - how you see yourself across the competencies. To turn it into a readiness verdict, pair Persona (self) with a Reflect 360 (others) against a target role.

Methodology: Persona is a 1-5 behavioural self-report scored per competency (reverse items mapped), averaged by cluster, and compared against a target role and, where set, a norm group. It is a self-report signal, not an objective measure or a decision. See the Persona Methodology Brief for full detail.
